For State Treasurer,
Gen. Silas M. Bailey.

A man who from his youth up, has fought the battles of Republicanism in a region where no hope of success could add vigor and zeal to the contest, and with no reward save the consciousness of having served the cause he loved.

A man who has attested his love of liberty and law, by service on the field of glory and blood, who won his promotion in the glorious Pennsylvania Reserves, from Captain to Brigadier, by meritorious service on the field.

A man who stood in the red hot hell of battle at Brainerds, on the Peninsula, at Gaines' Mill, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, and the Wilderness, and who bore witness with his blood, that he loved his country well.

He bears upon his person the rough scars left by the cruel cannon ball, and will carry to his grave the evidence of his patriotism and courage.

He is able, and worthy to lead Republicans to victory as he led his regiment to war.—Speech of Attorney General Putnam, in Republican State Convention.

Contrary to the law and the precedents, the States of New York and Rhode Island were excluded from participating in the organization of the Senate on Monday, although their Senators were present and ready to enter upon the duties assigned to them.

Through the refusal to admit them to their seats, Mr. Bayard was elected president pro tempore, but not until Senator Edmunds and others had had an opportunity to spread upon the records of the Senate the true character of the proceeding. Mr. Bayard, on taking the chair, addressed the Senate in a conciliatory and unexceptionable spirit, in marked contrast with the extreme partisan spirit which had just prevented enough Republican Senators from voting at all to have effected a different result.

This step accomplished, an immediate adjournment was effected, the President not even being informed that the Senate was organized. Should Senators Davis of Illinois, and Mahone of Virginia, continue to vote with the Republicans, after the admission of the Senators from New York, and Gen. Burnside's successor from Rhode Island, the presidency of the Senate will prove of little value to the blundering Democracy, although some lively skirmishing may be looked for.

The Democrat denominated as "a gratuitous slur" the statement that Allen H. Heist, the Democratic candidate for Sheriff, is "a very acceptable candidate to the whig-interests." It says that he is one of the most sober and upright men in the county. This may be so, but it would be interesting to know exactly what our contemporary means by the term "sober."

There are many so-called "sober" men who would be acceptable to the whiskey interest for any position, because their attitude is always favorable to that element. They are men who would never be suspected of the most remote desire to acknowledge themselves in favor of temperance. If we are not mistaken, Mr. Heist is the same kind of a temperance man as the prohibitionists nominated in Ohio. He is interested in cider presses and is a tavern keeper. Perhaps, however, as the Democrat intimates, he is not acceptable to the whiskey interest; but we would never have imagined, except for the Democrat's denial, that its candidate for sheriff occupies such a position that he is not only objectionable to temperance men, but is not even acceptable to the members of his own trade.

The New York Democratic State Convention finished its work yesterday and John Kelly and his Tammany braves went home completely crushed. The unanimous decision of the Committee on Credentials, shutting out both Tammany and Irving Hall from representation, and the ticket nominated all show that Tilden, through his lieutenants, had the convention thoroughly under control.

The following were then nominated for State officers: William Purcell, for Secretary of State; George H. Lapham, for Controller; Roswell A. Parmenter, for Attorney General; Robert A. Maxwell, for State Treasurer; Thomas Evershed, for State Engineer; and Augustus Schoonmaker, for Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals.

A new State Committee was elected by the convention. At a meeting of the committee afterward, Daniel Manning, Tilden's particular friend, was elected chairman.

MR. BLAINE'S LETTER ACCEPTING THE OFFICE OF SECRETARY OF STATE.

The letter of Secretary Blaine accepting the tender of the State Department made to him by the late President, has been given to the public by the Philadelphia Press. It was published in this paper on Friday last, and is as follows:

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20, 1880.

MY DEAR GARFIELD.—Your generous invitation to enter your Cabinet as Secretary of State has been under consideration for more than three weeks. The thought had really never occurred to my mind until at our late conference you presented it with such cogent arguments in its favor and with such warmth of personal friendship in aid of your kind offer.

I know that an early answer is desirable, and I have waited only long enough to consider the subject in all its bearings, and to make up my mind definitely and conclusively. I now say to you, in the same cordial spirit in which you have invited me, that I accept the position.

It is no effort for me to add that I make this decision, not for the honor of the promotion it gives me in the public service, but because I think I can be useful to the country and to the party, useful to you as the responsible leader of the party and the great head of the Government.

I am influenced somewhat, perhaps, by the shower of letters I have received urging me to accept, written to me in consequence of the mere unauthorized newspaper report that you had been pleased to offer me the place. While I have received these letters from all sections of the Union, I have been especially pleased and even surprised at the cordial and widely extended feeling in my favor throughout New England, where I had expected to encounter local jealousy, and perhaps rival aspirations.

In our new relation I shall give all that I am and all that I can hope to be, freely and joyfully, to your service. You need no pledge of my loyalty in heart and in act. I should be false to myself did I not prove true both to the great trust you confide to me and to your own personal and political fortunes in the present and in the future.

Your administration must be made brilliantly successful and strong in the confidence and pride of the people, not at all directing its energies for reelection, and yet compelling that result by the logic of events, and by the imperious necessities of the situation.

To that most desirable consummation I feel that, next to yourself, I can possibly contribute as much influence as any other man. I say this, not from egotism or vainglory, but merely as a deduction from a plain analysis of the political forces which have been at work in the country for five years past, and which have been significantly shown in two great National Conventions. I accept it as one of the happy circumstances connected with this affair that in all my political fortunes with you—or rather, for the time merging mine in yours—my heart goes with my head, and that I carry to you not only political support but personal and devoted friendship. I can but regard it as somewhat remarkable that two men of the same age, entering Congress at the same time, influenced by the same aims, and cherishing the same ambitions, should never, for a single moment in eighteen years of close intimacy, have had a misunderstanding or a coolness, and that our friendship has steadily grown with our growth, and strengthened with our strength.

It is this fact which has led me to the conclusion embodied in this letter, for however much, my dear Garfield, I might admire you as a statesman, I would not enter your Cabinet if I did not believe in you as a man, and love you as a friend.

Always faithfully yours,
JAMES G. BLAINE.

—Dr. Josiah Gilbert Holland, the editor of Scribner's Monthly (now the Century Magazine), died suddenly yesterday morning of angina pectoris, in New York city. For the past five years he has been in ill health, suffering from heart disease, the seriousness of which complaint he was fully aware of, his physicians having told him four years ago that he could not live for more than ten years and that he might die suddenly at any moment. On the 6th of October Dr. Holland returned with his family to New York from Bonaventure, his country residence among the Thousand Islands in the St. Lawrence river, feeling stronger and better in health than he had been for some time. Since his return he has been daily in the new offices of the Century Magazine in Union square attending to his editorial duties. On Tuesday last he remarked that he felt unusually well, and spent a longer time at the office than customary. He was in excellent spirits when he returned home, and retired for the night in apparently good health. At 6 o'clock yesterday morning he awoke and complained of a pain in his heart, and almost immediately afterward became unconscious. A doctor was summoned, but before he arrived Dr. Holland was dead. The deceased leaves a wife and two daughters, who were all present at his death-bed, and one son, Theodore Holland, who is in the senior class at Yale.

—Electric lights are now being introduced in the London club houses, the secondary battery, which stores electricity, being used. The light produced is said to be soft, balmy, and very clear, much superior to gas. It seems to be pretty well established that at least in large edifices and where much light is demanded, as well as for illuminating streets, it will be speedily introduced. The expense is very severe, except in cases of this kind.

—The efforts made in Canada and England to direct British emigration to the Canadian northwest along the route of their proposed Pacific Railroad are meeting with a larger measure of success than our countrymen have been ready to admit. The province of Manitoba, immediately north of Minnesota and Dakota, is a remarkable instance of rapid progress in civilized population, resembling somewhat the wondrous growth of our own western territories.

—Alexander of Russia is the least happy of sovereigns. He feels himself walking in the shadow of death in its most sinister form. He looks gloomily into the future. When with his great-uncle William the other day the Emperor promised to recommend his heir to prove a friend to the Czarina and her children in case of her premature widowhood. There was much religious conversation between the two rulers.

—It is now thought the question of jurisdiction will be raised in Guiteau's case.

A ZEALOUS CONVERT.

The oration of Senator Voorhees at Atlanta was the feature of the opening of the cotton exhibition. It was a very comprehensive and interesting address, and for the most part in excellent taste, and adapted to the occasion. It contained a very elaborate review of the history of cotton production in the country, but it was mainly devoted to an argument in favor of the introduction of cotton manufacturing into the South. To this end he commits himself unreservedly in favor of a protective tariff. He refers to the fact that Great Britain built up its manufactures and trade by means of tariffs, and only abandoned protection in part when it was no longer necessary. The policy of protection which has done so much for the North and East, he thinks, must now be applied to the industries of the South and West. He is in favor of it for Indiana. If the people of that State, "in paying a tariff tax for government support, as revenue, find that the laws compelling them to do so likewise foster, encourage and protect their young and growing manufactures of iron, hard-wood, glass, woolen and cotton, they will regard them with favor, as the result of wise legislation. Indeed, they will demand such an adjustment of the tariff as to insure that end."

The conversion appears to be complete. Mr. Voorhees has not taken a very prominent part in the tariff legislation of the country, but on a cursory examination of his record in the House and Senate, we do not find that he has ever yet given a vote in opposition to the free-traders. In 1870, when the tax and tariff bill was going through the House, he was, in the early stages of the debate, paired with Mr. Morrill of Pennsylvania, "on all questions relating to the tariff," and no man in the country is better known than Mr. Morrill as a protectionist. Later he was paired with Mr. Julian, his colleague, also a protectionist. On the final votes of concurrence with the Senate he voted steadily under the leadership of Mr. James Brooks of New York, a free-trader. In 1872 he voted with all the free-traders in favor of the amendment to the tariff bill reducing duties on a great variety of articles twenty per cent., and when that was defeated he voted for the ten per cent reduction which afterward became law. He has given no tariff vote, to our knowledge, since he has been in the Senate, but was paired in favor of the Eaton commission bill last year with Mr. Pendleton, who was opposed to it.

The change is significant, not because Mr. Voorhees is an economist of very high standing, but because it indicates the drift of public opinion. Mr. Hendricks, in his recent article, admitted that a change had come over the sentiment of Indiana people. As manufacturers are established in that and other Western States, the people and their representatives will be more tolerant of a system which they have heretofore condemned in theory. Indeed, as Mr. Voorhees says, they will insist upon such an adjustment of the tariff as will give them protection. The same remark will apply to Ohio and Illinois, and to all the Southern States, which are discovering the advantages of giving their skill, energy and capital a wider field of employment.—Boston Advertiser.

—The national capital the coming winter will be socially less attractive than it has been for many years past. The official mourning for the President will for several months prevent official entertainments and it is said that some of the most hospitable private families are also in mourning. The new Cabinet, and doubtless the new Congress, will bring into the society of the capital much new life. But the session will be far advanced before there will be much disposition to take advantage of it. The gossips, however, have already begun to speculate on the organization of the President's household, and the advent of the new British minister, Mr. Sackville West, with his beautiful kinswoman, Mrs. Cornwallis West. There have been many changes in the foreign legations at Washington since the last season.

—Says the North American, "The first blow has been dealt, and none too soon, at the graveyard insurance traffic. Governor Hoyt's action in refusing to charter any more of these bogus speculative life insurance companies is a step in the right direction, now let the assault be continued until all the ghouls have been hunted down. It is easy to talk of the immorality of Mormonism, but the reproach comes with an ill-grace from this State while premiums for murder are more or less publicly hawked around."

—General G. W. Gordon, the ex-Confederate, recently made an address in memory of Garfield before the Circuit Court at Memphis, in which he said: "I had rather possess the emotion, the culture, the oratory and the genius of Garfield than all the blood-stained laurels that over Caesar tore from the livid brows of fallen kings, or all the jewels that ever Hannibal stripped from the frozen fingers of his slaughtered knights."

—Edward Thompson, who was charged with stealing a mule, was acquitted at Hernando, Miss., last Wednesday. He is a son of the late Admiral Thompson Kibb, of the British navy, and grandson of the British admiral who led part of the forces under Nelson at the battle of Trafalgar. Lady Thompson sent several hundred pounds from London to a Memphis lawyer to defend her son, who had lived the life of a tramp for several years.

—Theodore L. Stockman, a wealthy miser, of Toledo, Ohio, died last Friday night in the midst of filth, squalor and want, at the age of 68 years. It is said he has accumulated over $200,000, but his appearance was that of "the dirtiest and worst looking pauper in the city." He leaves his property to one or two surviving children, to whom it was doubtless a surprising and most welcome gift.

—Baron von Haymerle, Austrian Premier, died.

—Mr. Gladstone's reception, wherever he makes his appearance, shows how large a place he holds in the popular heart. He commands more confidence and esteem than any living Englishman, and though he has reached an age when most men have finished their work, or laid it aside from an inability to do any more, he is to-day the one man above all others to whom the nation looks.

—The Senate convened in extra session on Monday in obedience to the call of the President. Mr. Bayard was elected President pro tem., and an adjournment followed without further action. The democratic Senators in caucus nominated Colonel Washington, of Virginia, for Secretary, and appointed a committee to consider the charge against Senator-elect Miller.

—Mrs. Jennie McGraw Fiske, who lately died at Ithaca, left a fortune of twelve million dollars. She was building a residence to cost two million dollars, intending to make it the finest in the United States. While in Europe last year she was married to Professor Fiske, of Cornell University.

—The Democrats seem to be elated with their success in snatching the Presidency of the Senate. This is natural. The Tribune soberly calls attention to the fact that it is the first thing they have reached for and not missed for a long time.

—A St. Petersburg correspondent states that the headquarters of the Nihilists have been discovered and sixty arrests have been made. Eight students at the military College at Moscow and two at St. Petersburg have been arrested for Nihilism.

LADY BEAUTIFIERS.—Ladies, you can make fair skin, rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes with all the cosmetics of France, or beautifiers of the world, while in poor health, and nothing will give you such rich blood, good health, strength and beauty as Hop Bitters. A trial is certain proof.

—A significant expression of the true feelings of the Mormon leaders was given by a nephew of Joe Smith in a sermon at Salt Lake City a few days ago. He urged it as the duty of every Mormon, young or old, rich or poor, to resist even to the death any law passed by the National Congress against polygamy.

—Water's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

—French troops have occupied the city of Tunis.

—Salt Rheum for seventeen years. Helpless for eight years. Unable to walk. Got about on hands and knees. Head, face, neck, arms and legs covered. Cured by Cuticura remedies. Will McDonald, 2642 Dearborn st., Chicago.

—It is proposed to erect a Memorial Hospital on the spot where President Garfield was shot. The ground belongs to the United States. The theatre in which President Lincoln was killed was purchased and transformed into a similar institution.

Relief in five minutes in every case, gratifying, wholesome relief beyond a money value. Cure begins from first application, and is rapid, radical and permanent. Choking, putrid mucus dislodged, membrane cleansed and healed, breath sweetened, smell, taste and hearing restored. Complete treatment for $1.00. Ask for Sanford's Radical Cure.

—Mr. Walker Blaine, oldest son of the Secretary, is reported to be a candidate for nomination to Congress in the 11th District of Maine next year.

—Death to rats and vermin, Parsons' Extremator.

—A fifty cent bottle of Dr. Evers' Diamond Chamber Remedy will cure the worst case of Catarrh or Hay Fever. Read the advertisement.

Messrs. White & Burdick, Druggists, Ithaca, N. Y.—I recommend to those suffering (as I have been) with Hay Fever, Ely's Cream Balm. Have tried nearly all the remedies I could find, and give this a decided preference over them all. It has given me immediate relief. C. T. STEPHENS, Hardware Merchant, Ithaca, N. Y. Sept. 6, 1880. Price 50 cents.

—Everybody says so. Merz, corner 17th and Washington streets has the largest brand in Bristol.

A Difficult Problem solved. Ambition, competition and over-exertion use up the vital powers of men and women, so that a desire for stimulants seems to be a natural human passion, and drunkenness prevails on account of this necessity for bodily and mental invigoration. Parker's Ginger Tonic fairly solves the difficult problem, and has brought health and happiness into many desolate homes. It does not tear down an already debilitated system, but builds it up without intoxicating.—Enquirer.
